Reid issued the warning at a meeting of farmers called by County Judge Jerome Decker. The meeting was held in the district courtroom here, to the other side of the field, and drew an estimated 40 to 50 persons.

There had been reports of heavy deer kill, especially in the Rio Medina area, by farmers. Some estimates ran as high as 500 animals.

As a result of the meeting, Decker chartered a bus to take area farmers to Austin for an audience with the governor yesterday (Wednesday) morn-

Since the problem is drouth related, the group asked the governor if long term, low interest loans could be secured to finance erection of deer

Because of the extreme drought, irrigated corn fields are about the only tender, green vegetation available for the county's heavy deer population, Decker said. Prior to last deer season, there were more than 60,000 deer in the "Deer from miles around congregate in corn fields, and they're destroying farmers' crops," the judge said.

However, Decker noted, there are only two solutions to the problem. One, he said, is a good rain, and the other is the erection of deer proof fencing.

The latter, Decker estimated, costs from $1000 to $1400 a mile.

Shooting the animals, he said, is no solution. He said there are just too many deer, and more hungry animals come in replacing those kill-

"The freeze was spotty," Bragg said, "and burned to about an inch of the ground in low spots."

He said it may be necessary to shred the tops of corn plants in one to two weeks to take off the damaged portion.

However, he warned farmers not to shred so far down as to damage the tassle still enclosed in the stalk.

"They can determine how far down to shred," Bragg advised, "by splitting three or four plants down the middle to check on the tassle.

"If they like, they can call me and I'll come and look at the plants."

Bragg said it is not advisable to replant. He said that while the freeze will reduce yields, producers will still get more income from treating their crop as normal than if they replant, or put in grain

New farm vehicle driver regulations are studied

AUSTIN--Drivers of farm vehicles are temporarily exempt from compliance with new safety regulations established by the U.S. Department of Transportation's Bureau of Motor Carrier Safety for drivers involved in interstate commerce. Texas Commissioner of Agriculture John C. White says that considerable confusion has developed among farm vehicle drivers following adoption of the new safety standards, but that an amendment to the regulations not apply. White pointed out, adopted Jan. 1, 1971, exempts drivers of farm vehicles for a six-month period until July 1, 1971.

Commissioner White says that according to the amendment, farm vehicle drivers must be 18 years old, rather than 21 as required in the general safety standards, and that other provisions of the regulations -- including writtenexaminations, road tests and physical examinations -- will

New mental health facilities needed

By John H. Poerner, State Representative, Dist. 49

Mental Health & Mental Retardation Center -- Present ly, citizens from the 49th District are limited in Mental Health and Mental Retardation facilities. We have no outpatient care within the District and present in-patient citizens are distributed throughout the State. Comparison of case histories on people having mental problems has proven that rehabilitation and cure is accomplished much faster when the patients live with individuals from their own area. Previously, assignments to dorms and wards had been based on similar diagnostic symptoms. The patient. regardless of affliction, needs to be engaged in conversation and this usually centers around similar backgrounds, experiences, and happenings in a lo-

To accommodate this theory statewide, it will be necessary to construct new facilities in areas that presently are not served. The San Antonio sector and that area to the west and south have a problem as mental retardation patients must go to Austin or Corpus Christi. There are 45,000 retarded adults and children in San Antonio alone.

A State Center for Human Development has been proposed for this area and I have been named Chairman of the subcommittee for this legislation in the House. I would urge Chambers of Commerce and the various Associations for Mental Health and Mental Retardation to assist in this several mayors and Chambers of Commerce in the District opposing a utility commission for Texas. Following the Easter recess at noon on Wednesday, last week, the State Affairs Committee heard arguments for and against a utility commission for five and one-half hours. Debates on telephone rates and electric and gas rates were discussed in great detail as we heard from the consumer and the companies. I have been placed on the subcommittee along with four other House Members to gain additional data. Anyone wishing to make a comment about utilities in Texas might write to me in the next two weeks. I will be happy to review the comments personally and pass them on to the other members of the subcommittee.

Peaceful co-existence asked

April 11, 1971 Dear Mr. Lawrence.

I'll start by re-iterating in print what you told me verbally the other day. You will print any letter you receive as long as it isn't libelous. I'm sending you this letter with the confidence you will do just that under the same pre-

I'll refer now to the article in last week's paper concerning Tony Garcia's scrape with the election judge. His earlier incident, the registration list scene, was not an isolated one. There were other people who actually did not have their voter registration slips; some were lost and still others were not received by the registrants (several hundred were actually mailed to the registrants after a vigourous registration drive by many Mexican-American groups).

However, I am apprehensive in speaking out like this because the paper has the advantage of always having the last word in these printed arguments with no room for rebuttle by an outside party. I am running the risk of being m ade look like a fool. I shall trust no such advantage will be taken in this case and will therefore continue.

Tony Garcia is perhaps one of many more who should have spoken out when they were confronted by this judge and told, in sometimes rather harsh tones, to go home and find their registration slips. As I mentioned before some people just did not receive these forms . . . most if not all happen to be Mexican-Americans. I can see where perhaps some of the more timid and humble people who might have appeared to vote for the first time in their lives would be discouraged by this type of reception. We need all the help we can get if we want to have good voter tum-outs in the future.

I can give you a case in point in the alleged "intimidation" charges. Before I do. however, maybe I should point out that "intimidation" has perhaps different meanings or applications to the Mexican-American than it does to the Anglo. I cannot go into this at this moment as it would take a lifetime of background to even try to make clear interpretations.

Now the case in point I want to get to is the one involving the incident which occurred when my wife and I went to vote. I presented my certificate to the clerk who took it and recorded my name as having been present to vote. However, when I told the judge that my wife had lost her certificate he asked our address, which we obediently gave, and he preceeded to look through the list. After several leafings he told us that she was not on the list and that if we were positive that she was registered that we should go home and bring proof. I then insisted that I knew she was on the list and asked him to look again. He told me my name was there and that if I were married my wife's name should be there with mine. Well, it is no fault of mine if my wife's name was not placed next to mine. As there were several Anglos around at the time I was getting embarrassed, not to mention a slow rage building up inside. I then asked the judge (who, by the way, was giving me what I took as his "you-dumb-meskin" look by that time) if I could look through the list to try to locate my wife's name. (Incidentally, at about this time my wife was giving me that "let's-forget-about-it" look.) I persisted and I did find her name on another page and we were then allowed to vote.

Now if you don't consider that intimidation. . .

There are other incidents involving abusive and vile language in Spanish that can be documented if more wants to be made of what happened at the polls.

However, at this time all we want to do is what is called "peaceful co - existance." We can let by-gones be bygones and we will try very hard . . . if you will.

Thank you for printing this letter word for word as you re-ture. But I have one consolation; I do say something.

QUESTIONS I'VE BEEN ASKED

Someone wanted to know the other day how come the zoning deviation by allowing a mobile home behind Dr. Landers' office between 20th and 21st Streets. Its presence there violates at least two portions of the zoning ordinance, ie. 1) no single family dwelling in a commercially zoned area, and 2) any structure must be at least five feet from the property lines. This one is less than five feet on three sides.

I asked a member of the Zoning Commission and he told me the committee as a whole had nothing to do with the decision. It was made outside the commission.

My question is "why a zoning ordinance in the first place if we can't live by what it says," and "why a zoning commission if such decisions as this without consulting the members?"

Changing City Limits

I understand that Rep. John Poerner and the Hondo National Bank are developing a mobile home park just east of town on Highway 90. They also plan a commercial area for the selling of mobile homes.

I am also told that to include all the park in the city services the Council will have to officially extend the city limits some 250 feet or so to the east.

This is fine. But I have been asked the question, "Why not go ahead and extend the city limits to the corner of Highway 90 and FM 173 so that the present businesses along the highway might receive city services and these services might also be available for any future businesses along that highway

Lift Station

In connection with the mobile home park east of town someone wanted to know. "Will this require the city to build a new lift station?"

I am told by city officials that this will not be necessary.

MUSTACHES KEEP COMING

Mustaches are a thing of the past for at least two men in Hondo. They have graduated to full beards for Museum Day. George Gooding and Harold Faseler both are sporting full beards.

Others who have joined the spirit of the celebration include: Gerald Bendele, Alton Huebner, Candy Salazar, Lupe Alvarez and Doro Hernandez, Ray Cortez, Genaro Avila and Al Leverett.

If you know of others who are helping us bring attention to Museum Day May 1 by growing a mustache please let us know.

It was suggested Monday night at the Museum Day meeting that a mustache 'cup be given as a prize for the best one. That's fine, but for certain once May 1 is past 1 won't be letting mine go so as to get ready for 1972.

ANTIQUE AUCTION

We are making a strong appeal to all residents of Medina County to please check their attics, barns, out sheds and even their homes to see if they have any old items (the older the better, but we will take anything) to donate to the Antique Auction. We need plenty of them because we are going to have a lot of people here on May 1 to buy them. So look now and ask your neighbor to do likewise.

CONGRATULATIONS

Congratulations are in order to the students of Medina Valley schools in Castroville for their fine showings in the University Interscholastic League Literary events. Thirty-seven of them were pictured in the

The subject was the critical aspects of the drouth, and we got around to the proposed help from the government by declaring this a disaster area.

Vernon pointed out, "It amazes me how slow we are in helping the farmers and ranchers. If a natural disaster happened anywhere in the world the United States would have relief and help there in less than 24 hours. But in a case like this by the time they go through all the red tape the farmer and rancher is ruined."

It beats me, too, Vernon. It does seem that some type of machinery could be set up to provide faster relief.

Drouth threatens erosion losses

Dust storms that have ravaged Texas in recent weeks may get worse before they get better warns the head of the state's U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

Clyde W. Graham, SCS State conservationist, says T exas dust storms have reached alarming intensity. "Acres damaged by wind erosion this blow season are already higher than any year since 1965," Graham reports. "If we don't get wides pread rains soon, wind erosion damages may reach mid-1950 levels."

Graham said the recordbreaking drouth is a major cause of the problem. Many areas report winter rainfall to be the lowest since records

He said the combination of drouth, high winds and lack of cover was causing serious land damaged across a wide section of the state. The storms are also creating health problems for people with respiratory ailments.

Reports from SCS offices tell of roads and streets blocked with sand and 6-foot drifts against houses. And it's not just a farm problem. Sandy land being stripped bare for urban developments is flowing, too. About 2 million acres of land in Texas has been damaged by wind erosion this year which is about the same as 1965. This compares to only 126,000 damaged last year. The most wind erosion in the past 20 years occurred during the 1956 blow season when 2-.7 million acres were dam -

Graham expressed concern that the 2 million figure for 1971 may double unless it rains soon.

He pointed out, however, that conservation programs pushed by his agency and by local soil and water conservation districts have been extremely valuable in curtailing wind damages this year. While the 2 million acre figure is high, it isn't close to the 15 million acres damaged during Dust Bowl days of the 1930's.

"it's remarkable how land covered with a good surface mulch of crop residue is being protected from wind erosion," Graham said. "Farms and ranches covered with conservation measures installed under the Great Plains Conservation Program are weathering the wind storms especially

Graham said that when you have good moisture, as we have had in recent years, wind velocity drops. And emergency tillage works as a good standby measure. As a result, people get by without wind damage during good rainfall years in spite of the fact that their land may be bare. This lulls many farmers into complacency and they ignore sound conservation farming

But right now, the stage conservationist said all that will help is a good rain.

Trade publication salutes Hondoan

John Leinweber, who was born on a farm nine miles above Hondo, has been saluted as employee of the month in Universal Bookbindery's monthly publication. The In-

The publication says Leinweber ". . . has played a big part in the story of the growth of Universal Bookbindery and Universal has also played a leading role in the life of John Leinweber."

Says the story.

"John's career at Universal spans more than 45 years. His first day on the job he drove a truck. Today John is the manager of the aibum department.

Universal played a bigrole in John Leinweber's romantic life. John met his bride at Universal. Today Bertha and John have just celebrated their 39th wedding anniversary (Mar. 22). Their two children, John, Jr. and Betty, are both married.

"They have eight grandchildren. Betty has six children and John two. Their youngest grandchild is three and the oldest granddaughter will be married this June.

"John built his own home over 20 years ago. He added very quickly, "with his wife's help." He loves working in the yard and has many kinds of flowers but he enjoys most budding and grafting fruit

How's a guy gonna get educated if ya lock him out?

This goat escapee appears to be waiting to enter the First Methodist Church educational building. Apparently the animal was intrigued with his reflection in the door. He frequently wandered a short distance away, but he returned to the door. Finally the Anvil Herald's camerman spooked him, and he trotted off. The goat was spotted roaming Hondo streets Thursday morning.

That's all she wrote

by Edna McDade

"SPRING, in all its glory, can be found in lise's living room . . . " so read an ad in a metropolitan daily last week. When it continued "Fourth floor, on the Square, Madison, Wisconsin", I knew it could not be referring to the GEORGE (Sis) ILSE's living room which is "on the Square" but not on the 4th floor and not in Wisconsin.

However, the Ilses might agree that when their two favorite grandchildren are around, it could well be "spring in all its glory".

What's in a name? Margin for error, that's what. When I reported on the plight of the honey bees recently, I credited the wrong bee-keepers and it was ALICE (Mrs. Alvin) WIEMERS who "buzzed" me to set the record straight.

The name should have been the OLEN (Velma) BRIEDENS of Yancey. OLEN WIEMERS is the GULF distributor (and among my good neighbors).

To justify my error, maybe I was thinking that he does a BEE-utiful job?

After going-on-10-years since I became a Medina Countian, I can't seem to get all the family names properly identified. Ever count the many surnames in our local phone directory, with from six to more than a dozen listings?

When I first came here, HUGO SCHWEERS told me not to worry. Just call everybody Schweers, Brucks, Wiemers, Koch, Lutz, Graff, Boehle, Bendele, Britsch, Haass, (etc. ad infinitum!). "If that's not their name now, it either was once or will be eventually," said Hugo.

Probably one of those occasions when the exception proves the rule as Robert Burton (1577 -1640) cautioned in--of all things--"Anatomy of Melancholy."

Wasps, I'm learning, serve a better purpose than just to buzz around stinging folks. (I had a recent experience).

Experiments, being conducted at the M. G. and JOHNNYE D. PERRY FOUNDATION, Robstown, have determined that the yellow jackets are useful in controlling many pests harmful to cotton, grains and vegetables.

I read a news story of their work recently which also said that the Foundation has issued its annual progress report, available to anyone interested.

Because I need all the help I can get to fathom matters agricultural, I requested a copy and it was promptly mailed.

It has been added to my files, I am enjoying the reading and, if I some day sound "knowledgeable" on any of the subjects the report covers so well in layman's language, you'll know why.

Madrid, Spain, was the home of Mrs. RAUL (Paloma) LOPEZ before she married and came to Hondo where she and her husband and three children, JAVIER (6), PALOMITA (5) and SERGIO (2) live at 2502 Ave. K

Palomita (Little Dove) attends La Escuelita, She and her little brother were happily showing off their pink and blue Easter rabbits when I met them. Big brother was at school and Daddy, formerly with Hayes-Hondo, is now employed at Kelly AFB.

Mrs. Lopez has only seen her mother once, on a visit here, in the seven years since she came to America. The family plan a trip to Madrid next year and won't that be a happy experience for three little native Texans?

BOB VAN DEWALLE's very young peach orchard might offer competition to hill country products a few seasons from now.

I have not seen the new venture but I've been told that is "well laid out" and Bob farms with convincing know-how. So, stand by for homegrown peaches, hopefully to be available on our local market, maybe?

When JOE NIXON saw me wearing a rain coat one dry, blustery and dusty morning, he said "My, I wish I had your faith!"

Joe should recall the perpetual state of Wilkins Macawber (David Copperfield) who was optimistic to the point of being always "ready in case of anything turning up" - - - or pouring down, like rain, for instance?

and Lions and high school students will fan out over the entire town in teams.

As last year the high school students will be competing with the Lions to see which group brings in the most sales. Top prize is $25 for the winning team.

"We enjoyed the sales last year," said Chairman Bill

Green, "and we think the help of the students brought it about. They provide an enthusiasm and competition that is needed for a project like this."
